The Langara Psychology Department is looking to hire a tutor for Spring 2025.

Job Description

- The tutor provides support to current Langara psychology students who are enrolled in a variety of first- and second-year courses. During a tutoring session, the tutor may help students with:
    - Understanding textbook content
    - Explaining common concepts in psychology
    - Understanding research articles
    - Using APA style when writing their assignments
    - Providing some assistance with assignments
- The tutor will be scheduled for at least one 2-hour in-person session at the Langara library and at least one 1-hour online session via Zoom. There is a possibility of the tutor holding additional sessions, depending on the tutor's availability and the department's needs. The tutor will also be asked to monitor a discussion board from Monday to Friday, adding an additional hour of work per week.
- This position requires a minimum of 4 hours per week, from January to April 2025, with the possibility of extension.
- The wage is $17.40 per hour, plus 4% in lieu of vacation and benefits. This position is unionized.

Qualifications

- Must be a current SFU or UBC student majoring in psychology.
- Must have completed courses in research methods and data analysis
    - PSYC 2320 and 2321 at Langara
    - PSYC 201 and 210 at SFU
    - PSYC 217 and 218 at UBC
- Has taken a variety of 200- or 300-level psychology courses. For example, courses in cognitive psychology, neuroscience, social psychology, developmental psychology, and/or clinical psychology.
- We are looking for a student who is highly motivated, has a strong academic background, and strong interpersonal skills.
- Former Langara students are encouraged to apply; however, this is not a requirement for the position.

Application Instructions

- Please send your unofficial transcript, resume, and completed application form to psycdept@langara.ca.
- The deadline to apply is October 17 at 4:00pm.